ANNEDROIDS

KIDS 6-9 LIVE ACTION/CGI SERIES

Science, adventure and androids!

All in a day's work for kid-scientist Anne.

Grades K-8 22 min each Sinking Ship Entertainment

A live-action/CGI blended series, Annedroids is the story of budding scientist Anne who builds robots to help her perform experiments with her friends Nick and Shania, and her android creations. It's a series that celebrates science, technology, engineering and math and does it all through the lens of an 11 year-old girl. There's nothing Anne likes more than getting her hands dirty to make things, breaking things apart to see how they work, and mixing things together to see that happens. Anne likes to push the boundaries of what's scientifically possible and has built three androids on her own: PAL, who is fascinated by everything and loves asking questions; EYES, whose ability to see things from all angles can get him into trouble; and HAND, who's strong and dependable but a little bit clumsy. Anne's experiments always lead to unforeseen complications, hijinks and misadventures. And that's where Anne's assistants Nick and Shania come in – Nick and Shania have an uncanny way of figuring out the real life solutions to Anne's scientific problems. Needless to say, when Anne, Nick, Shania and the androids work together, the results are far from predictable.

Beautiful Worlds

Day after day, from eon to eon, life on Earth unfolds. The wonders of our planet are myriad. But it is only as we look out that we begin to understand what really powers our perfect blue world. The Sun is in the center of it all -- the wellspring of energy for our entire solar system, reaching out not just with gravity but energy into the space around it.

#TTV001 $99: DVD or 3 year Streaming Rights (K-12 Single Site)

Mars on High

The Red Planet looms large in our solar system ... and in our dreams. It fills our minds with possibilities and promise, fuelling a hunger to embrace and explore. Our desire to attain this place has spurred us to build bigger and better telescopes, and propelled the space race. How many more generations of dreamers will pass before a human actually stands on the red planet?

#TTV002 $99: DVD or 3 year Streaming Rights (K-12 Single Site)

Star Cities

Our search for meaning in the universe began thousands of years ago. With only our eyes, stars and planets led us on a journey of discovery. Then telescopes slowly revealed the galaxies, full blown metropolises of stars. These gigantic star cities glow brightly across time and space, taking on fantastical forms and showing us a universe much more complex than we had ever imagined.

#TTV003 $99: DVD or 3 year Streaming Rights (K-12 Single Site)

Host City

The Milky Way is an ancient structure, forming out of the mists of the early universe. Its many brilliant vistas spark curiosity about the galaxy's past, present and future. This much is clear - the Milky Way is our home, the city of our cosmic address. It is a wellspring of human curiosity. And as we piece together it's dramatic story, we are also discovering our own.

#TTV004 $99: DVD or 3 year Streaming Rights (K-12 Single Site)

Stellar Nurseries

Deep within galaxies lie wispy, luminous clouds called nebulae. Observed from a great distance, nebulae appear still and calm. Up close, they are as noisy and active as any nursery -- soaked with radiation and beset by fierce winds. Fuelled by gravity and time and exquisite purpose, these nebulae churn out stars, most with their own planets.

#TTV005 $99: DVD or 3 year Streaming Rights (K-12 Single Site)

Chrysalis

There are stunning examples of giant molecular clouds all around the night sky. Fantastical objects with thick gas pillars taking on almost mystical shapes. These spectacular concentrations of gas and dust and everything that will ever be foretell the genesis of something new, something profound. And the first chapter in the story of us.

#TTV006 $99: DVD or 3 year Streaming Rights (K-12 Single Site)

Made of Stars

Through early telescopes, the dying breaths of stars looked like small planet disks, and were called 'planetary nebulae'. Clearer views painted a more interesting picture. A glimpse into the great chain of creation: stars seeding the universe with the complex elements needed to make all of the amazing things we see around us, including planets ... and life.

#TTV007 $99: DVD or 3 year Streaming Rights (K-12 Single Site)

Radiance in Death

To witness a supernova is to see a star suddenly appear in the sky, briefly outshining everything around it, then gradually fade back to nothing. Rare enough that over the course of human history, only a handful have been seen with the naked eye. Common enough that, with telescopes, we find their ghostly remnants scattered through the galaxies.

Jewel Boxes

Of all the things to see in the night sky, star clusters might be the most striking. Stars travelling together in space, like precious gems bound by gravity's chain. The incredible beauty of these jewel boxes of light makes them an ideal target for imaginative minds. The clusters tell stories about where stars come from, and ultimately, where we come from.

Ancient Objects

Globular clusters, spectacular assemblies of stars, sparkle like jewels at the galaxy's edge. The smallest contain ten thousand stars, and the largest, ten million. The stars here are ancient and pure, untouched by the processes of stellar evolution. Over time, gravity has pulled these stars into a ball shape. And now they glitter in the dusk, like dandelions gone to seed.

Island Universe

The Andromeda galaxy is our closest large galactic neighbour. On a dark, clear night, it is just visible to the unaided eye. Lying a staggering 2.4 million light years away, it appears as a fuzzy smudge against the black sky. Detailed velocity measurements of Andromeda reveal an ominous secret. It is more than just our nearest massive neighbour. It is our future.

Sky Mergers

Everywhere we look in the universe we see evidence of gravity's hand crushing star cities together, creating stunningly brilliant forms that inspire and complicate. Galactic collisions create star forming regions, and add to the galaxies finite supply of gas and dust, re-stocking and re-populating them for ongoing expansion projects.

Light Speed

Almost everything we see in the night sky – our Sun, the planets, the stars, the nebulae, the galaxies – is beyond our physical reach, and always will be. They are also beyond our time. When we look into space, we do not see objects as they are 'now'. Like beacons from another time, we see them as they were 'then' when their light started its long journey towards Earth.

The Quintessence

Most of the universe exists beyond our senses as dark matter and dark energy. These unknown entities contradict the immutable laws, and beg us to try and understand them. With the ultimate fate of the universe at stake, we can only imagine how these strange forces will reveal themselves in the years to come ... and alter our perception of reality forever.

Hubble on High

When humans took their first, tentative steps into space, astronomers began to imagine the power of a telescope not forced to peer through the atmospheric soup. They planned a small armada of space observatories. The most successful of them all, perhaps the most successful science mission in space history, is the Hubble Space Telescope.

Infrared Expanse

VISTA, the Visible and Infrared Survey Telescope for Astronomy, generates tremendous amounts of data doing large-scale surveys of the sky. VISTA was built to observe in a colour of light that the human eye cannot see – infrared. Infrared light can travel through dust clouds, allowing infrared telescopes to pull back the veils on some of the universe's most interesting objects.

Striking Forms

From Stonehenge and Jaipur to modern day observatories, humans create special places to watch the sky, to spend the long, lonely nights drawn by its beauty, and to uncover its secrets. And for every leap in technology, our view gets clearer, and the cosmos gets more astounding. From distant galaxy clusters to our closest neighbours, each object has a story to tell, stories that ultimately connect to us.

Signs of Life

Stuck on Earth, we have been able to learn many incredible things about the universe. We have even figured out that there is star dust in our blood. Once humans established this profound connection to the cosmos, the next question was obvious: if we are here, do others exist? This simple question drives much of modern-day astronomy.

Last Fish, First Boat

Grades 6-12 2021 6 min Jennifer Verma

When the cod fishery collapsed, fisherman Eugene Maloney's livelihood is yanked out from underneath him but every bit the enterprising Newfoundlander, Gene marks the end of the fishery with a new beginning. He pivots to boatbuilding, a self-taught practice he continues today. Set in Bay Bulls, NF, Last Fish, First Boat revisits the 1992 cod moratorium through a fisherman's eyes. It's an old story that holds new meaning today, as a global pandemic put Canadians from coast-to-coast out of work, stuck at home and needing to pivot. Like Gene's story, where there's will, Canadians will find their way. A wonderful short animated story for environmental studies, social studies, geography, biology, English, language arts, creative writing, and art.

A World Without Sand

Grades 7-12 2020 52 min Cinefete

Sand is all around us. It's the main ingredient for concrete and we use it to build our houses and city infrastructures. It's the second most exploited natural resource ahead of oil and natural gas.

While it seems to be an infinite resource, only a small portion of the sand on our planet is exploitable. Beaches and rivers are being harnessed with devastating impacts on the environment. With the help of geologists, engineers and nature advocates, we explain why sand is such an important part of our lives and how we can protect this valuable resource.

The Seven Sacred Laws is a colourful and imaginative animated series that follows a young boy on an Indigenous rite of passage: a vision quest. On his spiritual journey, he meets seven sacred animals that teach him how we as people should live our lives on Mother Earth.

Written by Anishinaabe Elder, Dr. David Courchene, directed by Indigenous filmmaker, Erica Daniels of Peguis First Nation, and created by Manitoba's Peg City Pictures Inc., the vignettes tell the stories of Indigenous Peoples in their own voices.

The Seven Sacred Laws are important teachings in our cultures as the Original People of Turtle Island. They are ancestral values that inspire our conduct as human beings and bring us back to a relationship with the Earth.

Includes the following episodes:

Episode 1: The Creation Story - A young boy sets out on a vision quest in a sacred place known as Manito Api, which translates to "where the Creator sits".

Episode 2: Buffalo (Respect) - An apparition of a buffalo emerges from the sacred fire and teaches the boy the law of respect.

Episode 3: Eagle (Love) - A large eagle appears overhead to teach the law of love.

Episode 4: Bear (Courage) - A bear emerges from the woods and startles the boy, as he learns about the law of courage.

Episode 5: Sabe (Honesty) - A large and imposing creature similar to Bigfoot appears and teaches the boy about honesty.

Episode 6: Beaver (Wisdom) - A beaver scurries up to the boy to provide the law of wisdom.

Episode 7: Wolf (Humility) - The boy is approached cautiously by a wolf, who explains to him the value of humility.

Episode 8: Turtle (Truth) - A beautiful song draws the boy to a special encounter with a turtle, who helps him understand the importance of truth.

Grades JK-3 2014 22 min each

Animiki See Distribution Inc.

Amy's Mythic Mornings is a fun and innovative animated series that teaches problem solving and moral guidance through traditional knowledge from Indigenous storytelling. Six-year-old Amy and her friends Theodore and Casey bring the lessons to life when they imagine themselves in the rich stories told by Amy's Grandmother. Each episode contains a series of lessons for children to learn, as well as sing-a-longs, and a collection of original songs. Created by Delores Smith and Darryl Whetung, an award-winning Ojibway film, television and documentary editor/producer.

Series #ASO101 $792 (8 programs): DVD or 3 Year Streaming Rights (K-12 Single Site)

Thunderbird and Orca (Coast Salish)

Amy and her friends Theodore and Casey go on an adventure to stop the greedy whale from devouring the entire sea! On the way, they are saved by the mythical Thunderbird who flies them high in the skies! Thunderbird and Orca teach the children that learning to share may be the best way they can all live in harmony. In addition, skids learn more about the thunderbird and the Cowichan people.

Picking Up the Pieces: The Making of the Witness Blanket

Grades 9-12 2019 84:10 min Canadian Museum for Human Rights / Musée canadien pour les droits de la personne

The Witness Blanket stands as a national monument to recognize the atrocities of the Indian residential school era, honour the children, and symbolize ongoing reconciliation. In an attempt to honour the more than 150,000 victims of the Canadian residential-school system, including his own father, artist Carey Newman embarks on a long journey to create the Witness Blanket. This large-scale art installation, inspired by the woven blanket's symbolization of protection in Indigenous cultures, features hundreds of artifacts gathered from former residential school sites, churches, government buildings and other affiliated structures.

Picking Up the Pieces: The Making of the Witness Blanket follows Newman and his team as they travel across Canada to meet survivors and collect these pieces of history. Through these survivors' testimonies, the documentary offers a crucial account of the atrocities committed in government-funded, church-run schools—and the lasting effects those acts have had on Indigenous communities.

BIO: Carey Newman or Hayalthkin'geme is a multi-disciplinary artist and master carver. Through his father, he is Kwakwak'awakw from the Kukwekum, Giiksam, and WaWalaby'ie clans of Fort Rupert, and Coast Salish from Cheam of the Sto:lo Nation along the upper Fraser Valley. Through his mother he is English, Irish, and Scottish.

Midnight Light Media Inc.

Golden Sheaf Award in the Multicultural category at Yorkton Film Festival 2021

Winner of Multicultural - 30 min & over documentary - Yukon Film Festival 2021

The Arctics explores the history and impacts of the Arctic Winter Games, an international, biennial multi sport games that has been celebrating circumpolar sport and culture in the North since 1970. This short documentary follows the stories of characters from across the 9 regions as they prepare to partake in the 2020 Arctic Winter Games which marks 50 years since first opening in Yellowknife, NWT.

From feeding reindeer with first time athletes in the Sámi region of Norway to exploring the indigenous sports of Yamal, Russia to the history of the Dene games to meeting Nunavut's first NHL player, The Arctics not only explores the role of sport in isolated communities but also its ability to build cultural and regional pride.

Both educational and inspiring, The Arctics introduces viewers to the North in an emotionally impactful way painting a picture of Indigenous and northern cultures and landscapes while celebrating sport and its ability to inspire, transform and elevate northern athletes.

Grades 9-12 2021 10 min Grand Council of the Crees

In the early 1970's, the massive James Bay Hydroelectric Project came to this territory, a time when there was no recognition of aboriginal rights in Canada. The project would have a huge impact on their way of life. Faced with the threat, Cree leaders worked with the law to retain their identity and signed the James Bay Northern Quebec Agreement (Cree Quebec Governance Agreement) in 2012, a modern-day treaty. We Are the Eeyouch of Eeyou Istchee is an overview of the form of governance over this time period up to today.

The Solstice Concerts featuring Federal Lights

For Jean-Guy Roy, the collapse of his group The Morning After spawned the seeds of Federal Lights. Comprised of guitarist Robert Mitchell, musical brothers David and Jason Pankratz on drums and bass, and Roy's wife Jodi providing both vocals and keyboard skills, the Western Canadian Music Award-winning folk/rock five-piece sings heavy hooks that are born of the wreckage in the best way. They earned critical praise and an Indigenous Music Award nomination for Rock Album of the Year. The Solstice Concerts 2016 – Joey Stylez With Dragonette

Joey Stylez's story is as unique as the music he creates. This Juno-nominated Hip Hop artist hit the ground running in the early 2000s with internet and mainstream hits that challenged society's views of Indigenous people. Growing up in Saskatoon, he had gone down a path of darkness that few return from. With friends and family members on the same path dying, and the statistics for Indigenous youth dismal, the future did not look promising for him as a young man. His early music, which served as healing medicine, told a story of the current reality of being an Indigenous youth in Canada. He became an online force as he released song after song and video after video, that shared that story with mainstream North America and across the globe. He had the honour of opening Canada's Truth and Reconciliation process at a Winnipeg event and performed his critically acclaimed song Living Proof that illustrated the horrors of Canada's Residential School system.

Conflicts that Shaped a Continent

Grades 7-12 2017/2019 Each season 13 episodes x 22 min ea Chasing Pictures Inc.

Available in English (EN) and Coast Salish (CS)

Nations at War is an exciting historical documentary series. Through cinematic historical footage, interviews with top historians, and state-of-the-art CGI, Nations at War presents a gripping account of the battles that shaped a continent.

At the end of the 15th century, two worlds which had stood apart for generations violently collided. The kingdoms of Europe and the Indigenous nations of the Americas. Despite being divided by language, culture and technology, it was the things they had in common which drove them to war. The quest for power, a desire for resources, and a will to survive.

Through the centuries of conflict that followed cultural and political alliances formed and crumbled, empires rose and fell, and two nations emerged to redraw the map of North America. These are the battles that shaped a continent. These are NATIONS AT WAR!

From the Viking invasion of Newfoundland to the desperate last stand of a Métis Nation fighting for recognition, you'll bear witness to the triumphs, treacheries and tragedies which bound the destinies of Indigenous and newcomers together.

Secularism: The Decline of Religion?

Grades 9-12 2021 8 min Shortcuts TV

Secularisation - the idea that as societies modernize they become less-religious in outlook and governance - is a key concept in the Sociology of Religion that has, in recent times, undergone a range of re-evaluations. This short program introduces students to a slightly-different take on the concept of secularisation by looking at it in two ways: Firstly, by questioning the over-easy assumption that in pre-modernity, "religion was everywhere" whereas in modernity it is "almost nowhere". Secondly, by looking at contemporary research evidence that suggests religion, rather than simply "disappearing", may be undergoing a process of diversification.

This film is designed to introduce students to the general concept of secularisation, its relationship to modernization and a range of evaluative points that can be brought to bear in any discussion of secularisation.

The re:LOCATION documentary series is a collection of compelling, socially relevant stories that need to be told, especially in light of ongoing efforts to re-examine historical events and achieve reconciliation by acknowledging past injustice to Canadians who have been marginalized and arbitrarily uprooted for political and economic reasons. Each episode will portray a culturally and geographically diverse community from different periods in Canadian history that has been involuntarily and sometimes inhumanely relocated, often with devastating consequences.

La série documentaire ré:INSTALLATION relate des histoires fascinantes sur le plan social, des histoires racontées à la lumière des efforts déployés pour revisiter certains événements historiques. Par le passé, des Canadiens ont été marginalisés et déracinés de façon arbitraire, pour des raisons politiques et économiques. Reconnaître ces injustices mène à la réconciliation. Chaque épisode dépeint une collectivité différente sur les plans culturels et géographiques. Ces communautés ont été déplacées malgré elles, à différentes époques de l'histoire canadienne, parfois de façon inhumaine, entraînant des effets dévastateurs.

Africville

The history of the African-Canadian village with origins dating back to the late 1700's is well-documented, but in light of the Black Lives Matter protests that swept the world in the spring of 2020, there is a renewed sense of urgency to revisit Africville and document its living history. We'll hear from the original residents of Africville who witnessed the destruction of their homes and livelihood in the name of 'urban renewal' during the 1960s, and their children and grandchildren who continue to fight for equality and justice.

Promise Me is a film that is inspired by events while filming a documentary called The Woman I have Become about eight African, Black, and Caribbean women living with HIV/AIDS in Toronto trying to build awareness about their struggles in the Canadian health care system. The children of one of the mothers was apprehended by Child Welfare, because she was too sick to mother. A week later her mother passed away. Director and Co-writer, Alison Duke carried the story with her and wrote an article about it called The Missing 17 Minutes for the Project Muse journal. The story has haunted her psyche for years and recently, she turned it into a short dramatic script.

Balarama: W5

Grades 9-12 2020 22 min CTV

Balarama Holness, a law student and community organizer who once played professional football, is becoming a leading voice against systemic racism in Canada. He has grabbed Canadian headlines after mobilizing a grass-roots movement over the past two years that pushed Montreal's City Hall to hold hearings on systemic racism. Holness observes that while Canada has sought to portray itself as a progressive, liberal bastion, the reality is far more sinister, with Indigenous people subjugated, Black residents in Toronto 20 times as likely to be killed by the police than white residents, and historical amnesia.

BEST Feature Film – Better Cities Film Festival

“The message of this film is timely and relevant to audiences of all ages.” -

Emily Branje, Community Living Ontario

We are living in a time that has been described as the age of loneliness. Despite Western advances in technology, living conditions, education and healthcare, we, as a society, are isolating ourselves from one another, and because of this, facing a health crisis that affects all ages, genders, races, and cultures.

But how have we become so disconnected? And what can we do to change the status quo and fulfill our potential for health and well-being?

Join wellness expert Tamer Soliman as he journeys through North American cities to meet with local citizens, community activists, and leading authorities on social, economic, and urban planning to discover the true factors that have profound and lasting impacts, not only on our health, but the health of the communities in which we live. This timely documentary invites us to reflect on the relationships we have with those around us and raises the question: is it possible to overcome our modern culture of disconnectedness and rediscover how truly essential we are to one other?

Ode to My Father

Grades 9-12 2020 21:50 min Prairie Boy Productions

“Ode to My Father” is a personal documentary that explores the relationship between sons and fathers, family, and mental illness as we try to understand the grieving process of immigrants who mourn their losses at a distance. Within a family, suicides tend to be contagious, but looking at this curse in the eye, and calling it by its name may break the spell.

Grieving suicide is a complicated process. However, it helps to have time honoured traditions for healing, the day of the dead where one can experience the presence of a loved one through their memories. From his home in Winnipeg, Jorge plunges into a conversation with his dead father, an exploration on the depths of his father’s depression and suicide, hoping to forgive him and remember him the way he would’ve wanted to be remembered.

In Canada, a woman is murdered every six days by an intimate partner. Lawyer and advocate Pamela Cross says, "a woman will leave an abusive relationship 12 times before she stays out for good. But I want to change the discourse from, 'Why don't women leave' or 'Why do women keep going back,' to 'Why does he keep abusing?'"

The program features the stories of the recent deaths of two young women in Ontario, with opinions about how the system failed them. Their families mourn their loss and wish they had done more to prevent these needless deaths. Some police departments are providing special training for officers who respond to calls involving domestic violence, but abused women are often reluctant to call police, either because of fear of the abuser, financial dependence, or fear of losing dependent children. One counselling program called "Changing Ways" in London, Ontario is mandated for abusive men as a condition of bail, but its success is limited, partly due to cuts in funding.

Toxic Crisis: W5

Grades 9-12 2021 22 min CTV

In the first nine months of 2020, during the first wave of the pandemic, nearly 1,700 people died from drug overdoses in Ontario alone. That's a 55 per cent increase over last year. In Alberta, during that same time period, more people died from overdoses than from COVID-19. It's the toxic drug supply; an epidemic within the pandemic. Never before in the history of Canada have more people died from drug overdoses. It's a health emergency that is being fuelled by the pandemic.

The very measures that are meant to keep us safe from the virus are having unintended consequences on those struggling with addiction and mental illness. Lockdowns mean isolation, lost jobs, and difficulty accessing services. The shutdown of the Canada-U.S. border has disrupted the illegal drug supply, so what is on the street is more contaminated than ever, as dealers mix in other ingredients to stretch their supply.

Where's My Alphabet?

PreS-Grade 1 2021 26 x 2 min each GAPC Entertainment
Order #GAP076 - $199: Streaming Playlist (26 x 2 min episodes)

Where's My Alphabet? is a series that takes us on a romp and a scavenger hunt to discover the alphabet in our very own backyards... literally! Not to mention in our homes, on our driveways, in our gardens, through skype, and in some of the most unexpectedly delightful places and spaces.

This early learning literacy series puts a focus on the letters of the alphabet and the everyday, real world objects that we can find that start with each letter. It is 'anytime learning' that meets children 'where they are'! Each snackable episode start with a call-to-action, 'What letter are we looking for today?'. They're off... our treasure hunters take the challenge, and discover just how incredibly awesome their very own house is, while taking a deep dive into the alphabet. The mission? To find 4 fantastic things that start with one letter of the alphabet! Our stars use smart phones and tablets to find and film their items, searching inside, outside, under and over to come up with their 4 words.

Content spearheaded by kids for kids, that will inspire our audience and their families with the joys of discovery, working together, and learning, right in their very own home!

Saving Notre Dame: NOVA

Grades 9-12 2021 PBS

When Notre Dame Cathedral caught fire in 2019, Paris came perilously close to losing more than 800 years of history. As engineers rebuild, researchers use cutting-edge technology to piece together what happened and restore the cathedral. Underneath the charred scaffolding and vaulted ceilings of the cathedral, scientists study the components of Notre Dame's iconic structure to puzzle out how best to repair it. Deep below the streets of Paris, researchers explore medieval quarries, investigating the marine fossils they hold to figure out where the cathedral ceiling's original limestone was mined from.

In a cutting-edge laboratory, glass conservators painstakingly repair Notre Dame's stained-glass windows, removing vaporized lead left behind by the inferno. And in the countryside, carpenters show how specific trees could be chosen for their grain to mimic the curves of the timbers of the cathedral's towering attic—the so-called "forest."
