Award-winning, relevant content for your courses

Follow visionary scientist, conservationist and author, Diana Beresford-Kroeger, on her journey to the most beautiful forests of the northern hemisphere. From the sacred sugi and cedar forests of Japan, the ancient Raheen Wood of Ireland, the walnut and redwood trees of America, to the great boreal forest of Canada, Beresford-Kroeger tells us the amazing stories behind the history and legacy of these ancient forests while also explaining the science of trees and the irreplaceable roles they play in protecting and feeding the planet. See page 30.

In the shadow of a De Beers mine, the remote community of Attawapiskat lurches from crisis to crisis, while facing mounting environmental issues and an inability to directly benefit from resource revenues. Filmed over five years, After the Last River is a point of view documentary that follows Attawapiskat's journey from obscurity and into the international spotlight during the protests of Idle No More. See page 31.

In 1992, as pressure from international conservation groups to protect the great forests of Uganda mounted, the indigenous Batwa tribe was forcefully removed from their ancestral home by the Ugandan government. One of the most ecologically diverse places on earth, the Bwindi impenetrable forest nurtured the Batwa, and in turn the tribe worshiped all that it gave them. Upon eviction, however, the Batwa received nothing in the way of compensation or support, and so fell into poverty. See page 41.

'In Jesus' Name: Shattering the Silence of St. Anne's Residential School' is a poignant all-Indigenous English and Cree-English collaborative documentary film that breaks long-held silences imposed upon children who were interned at the notoriously violent St. Anne's Residential School in Fort Albany First Nation, Ontario. First Nations children from all over the western James Bay region suffered isolation from family and community as well as physical, sexual, spiritual and cultural abuse at the hands of the Catholic Oblates of Mary Immaculate and the Sisters of Charity. Some were abused by other students who had learned violent behaviours from their 'caregivers.' While Chief Wilton Littlechild imparts some of what he learned from his six years as a Truth and Reconciliation Commissioner, seven St. Anne's survivors publicly share their acutely emotional stories, some for the very first time. The film also brings to light how, in this era of truth and reconciliation, the Canadian government continues to try to silence knowledge of abuses that occurred at St. Anne's by withholding evidence from the survivors as they seek compensation for harms done to them when they were just children.

CANCORE

The oldest of 11 children, Edmund Metatawabin was born and raised in the valley of the Kistachowan Sipi, re-named in English as the Fort Albany River, in northern Ontario. His family lived as the Mushkegowuk (Lowlands Cree) had lived for millennia, and for the first seven years of his life Edmund spent his winters on an inland tributary and his summers on the shore of Winipek (James Bay). At eight, he was taken from his family and placed in the St. Anne's Residential School in Peetabeck (Fort Albany). #PT0010 $159: DVD Please call for streaming rights.

Truth, Dance and Reconciliation

2013 CC Aarrow Productions

#AP0000 $159: DVD Please call for streaming price.

The story of Canada's residential school system and its traumatic consequences is one of the darkest and most troubling truths about our history, but the Royal Winnipeg Ballet suggested an unlikely but powerful — way for the country to learn and heal from decades of pain.

This documentary explores the one-year artistic gestation of the ballet through footage recorded at dance rehearsals, creative team gatherings, Aboriginal cultural retreats, and on opening night in Winnipeg. Interviews with creative team members and dancers reveal the apprehension they felt while creating and presenting a ballet about this dark side of Canadian history.

Powerfully interwoven with the story of the ballet's creation is the story of one former student and her experiences at residential school. Fifty years later, her story intersects with the stories of the ballet's creators when she attends a performance of Going Home Star. It's a story of truth, dance and reconciliation. The moving piece was commissioned with the support of the Truth and Reconciliation Commission.

Last Call Indian: Searching for Mohawk Identity (Portions in French with English subtitles) 2010 CC 46 min Films Media Group

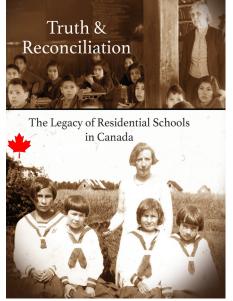

Winner, Diversity Award, Gala des Prix Gémeaux

"Worth the price of admission. If you ever wanted a glimpse into the havoc wreaked upon an entire peoples' soul by the Indian Act then hop on board....This film takes the viewer on only one part of that emotional journey, but it does so with power and grace." — Media Indigena

By the time Sonia Boileau's grandfather Mitchell left the Shingwauk Indian Residential School in 1947 he no longer knew how to speak his native tongue. The institution had done its job well—Mitchell married and raised children, who didn't realize until they had children of their own that Mitchell was in fact Mohawk. Sonia now faces a similar stripping away of the First Nation heritage her family only recently reclaimed. According to Canada's Indian Act, any children she has will not be "officially Indian" unless their father has the requisite percentage of indigenous blood. In this powerful documentary, filmmaker Sonia Boileau returns to Shingwauk to work out the implications of her grandfather's life and of his death, especially in relation to Canada's race policies and her own cultural identity.

Truth and Reconciliation: The Legacy of Residential Schools in Canada 2016 CC 30 min LeMay Media "LeMay's documentary can go a long way in helping students understand that the history of residential schools cannot be relegated to the past." - Resource Links, 2017

This program examines the history, legacy and current impacts of the Residential School experience in Canada. From the establishment of the early Residential Schools to the work of the Truth and Reconciliation Commission, this film shines a light into this dark and troubling chapter of Canadian history. Written and directed by multiple award winning Métis filmmaker Matt LeMay, this poignant documentary gives a history of the schools - why and how they were established. Thousands of children were abused and many even died while attending these institutions. The cultural genocide and abuse perpetrated by the Canadian government and Canada's churches towards seven generations of Indigenous people has inflicted deep sociological wounds that are still felt by survivors, families, and communities across Canada today. Archival footage, interviews and news clips bring to light the lasting impact of residential schools on Indigenous communities and Canada as a whole.

Residential Schools: Truth and Reconciliation in Canada

2015 CC 18 min McIntyre Media Inc.

Residential Schools are a part of our shared history in Canada. Prior to European contact, First Nations people had their own education system, governing system, beliefs and customs. While some positive alliances were established, the arrival of missionaries and others kicked off a systematic attack on the traditional customs and culture of native communities. In 1883, as a result of treaty negotiations and government proclamations, Prime Minister Sir John A. Macdonald authorized the creation of three "industrial schools." Thus began the misguided attempt "to kill the Indian in the child."

Between 1879 and 1986, at least 150,000 Indigenous children in Canada - almost a third of indigenous children - were forcibly removed and placed into Indian Residential Schools. The assault on their identity began the moment children took their first step across the school's threshold. Their unique culture was stripped away to be replaced with a foreign European identity. Their family ties were cut, clothes replaced, and children were prevented from returning home.

The telling of Canada's history is not complete without this story. Some refer to it as a "cultural genocide." Generations upon generations of Indigenous people have been affected by the abuse and horrors experienced in these schools. The Truth and Reconciliation Summary that was undertaken as an element of the Indian Residential Schools Settlement Agreement outlines 94 recommendations for achieving a full reconciliation between Canada's native and non-native peoples.

Hidden Story Pictures Ltd.
Official Selection – Calgary International Film Festival
Official Selection – American Indian Film Festival, 2015

Series Product #HS0000 $834 Please call for streaming price.

Elder in the Making crosses many disciplines and curriculum - history, music, ecology, indigenous stories, and questions of identity and the meaning of becoming an elder are integrated together. The intent of early Canadians were in retrospect clear: to make way for the railway to unite the country; deal with the 'Indian problem'; and claim the land and all its resources. The impact of broken promises and cultural genocide on a population decimated by small pox and disease are felt to this day. The past does not lie passively in history textbooks but lives in flesh and blood today.

Join Cowboy Smithx (the "x" is silent), a Blackfoot searching for his identity, and Chris Hsuing, a first generation Chinese-Canadian filmmaker, on a trip across Treaty 7 territory to re-discover their shared heritage. This film blends sweeping visual imagery and documentary storytelling as well as poetry and theatrical performance to bring to life the memories of the land and its people. A spectacular documentary smartly chaptered into 6 distinct, chronological stories for easy use in classrooms.

Episode 1: Silent X (19:35 min)

Filmmaker Chris Hsuing sets out on a journey of discovery in traditional Blackfoot territory. Hsuing discovers how history can tell you how life came to be, what has changed and what hasn't changed. He teams up with Cowboy Smithx from the Blackfoot First Nation to delve deep into indigenous history. #HS0001 $159: DVD Please call for streaming price.

Episode 2: Westward Trek (13:09 min)

Canadian politicians feared American expansionism which would hem Canada into the north-east corner of the continent, unable to access the rich resources of the Prairies and making it near impossible to attract new immigrants to boost the populations and drive commerce. Western expansion was now seen as a vital part of Canada's economic future. With the acquisition of Rupert's Land and the building of the railway, the Canadian government needed to address any and all Aboriginal claims to the land. To link the country meant building through Blackfoot country. The North West Mounted Police were sent to secure the land. Treaties were negotiated and signed. Promises were made. Life for the Blackfoot changed dramatically. #HS0002 $159: DVD

Episode 3: Sacred Ground (23:14 min)

Diving deeper into the history of the land and the people who lived there gives us a greater understanding of the present. In this episode, visit Grasslands National Park and Head-Smashedin Buffalo Jump, petroglyphs and archeological sites in Treaty 7 territory. This area was a "tapestry of nations" before Europeans arrived with a sophisticated set of protocols and ceremonies to maintain peace and structure. It was considered the "Serengeti of North America" where bison roamed freely and were an integral part of life and survival. #HS0003 $159: DVD Please call for streaming price.

Episode 4: Apocalypse (13:18 min)

Two apocalyptic events transformed Indigenous life in the prairie forever– the massacre of the buffalo and the introduction of disease. These led to a spiritual and cultural disaster and mass starvation for First Nation tribes, essentially wiping out a once vibrant culture. Devastated, First Nations people turned to the Dominion of Canada for help. Canada's responsibility went from one of protection to one of civilizing. #HS0004 $159: DVD Please call for streaming price.

Episode 5: A Broken Treaty (15:06 min)

As time passed, the Canadian government's perspective with regards to Aboriginal people changed. The Indian was now a problem needing a solution. What follows from the treaty signing is a genocide in slow motion. Elder Narcisse Blood shares his story growing up in residential school and the person he became.

#HS0005 $159: DVD Please call for streaming price.

Episode 6: Death and Renewal (17:01 min)

Despite the history, trauma and devastating loss, there is a somewhat renewed sense of commitment to the land and for future generations. As Blackfoot Elder Narcisse Blood once spoke "the folly is when we think man is it." We must respect all life. History deepens our sense of place and reveals the mistakes of civilization. While acknowledging the human rights abuses of the past, the filmmakers also discover a sense of joy and hope for the future. As it turns out, an elder in the making is a responsibility we all share. #HS0006 $159: DVD

The History of Treaties in Canada

2016 CC 14 min LeMay Media

From the Royal Proclamation of 1763 to the implementation of the modernday Algonquin land claim, The History of Treaties in Canada explores the history, application and legacy of these foundational legal documents and how they continue to shape and define the often strained relationships between First Nations and the Crown in Canada. Viewers learn about the creation of reserves, land rights issues, the spirit and intent of treaties, the development of legislation, the creation of residential schools, and modern-day treaty negotiation. Written and produced by award-winning Métis filmmaker Matt LeMay, this video is a valuable resource for your History, Canadian Studies, Law, First Nations, Métis and Inuit Studies and Civics classes.

For the size of their population, Indigenous women in Canada account for an incredibly overrepresented percentage of missing persons and murder statistics. Sheena, a lost teenager, is placed in a girl's home. Seemingly forgotten and yearning for a life of freedom, she runs away, only to be picked up by a dangerous stranger. The directorial debut by actor Kawennáhere Devery Jacobs is a sober commentary of missing Indigenous women. The short film debuted at imagineNATIVE Film and Media Arts Festival and was inspired in part by the life and tragic death of Tina Fontaine. Not unlike Sheena, Fontaine, 15, was in the care of Manitoba Child and Family Services when she was reported missing to the Winnipeg Police Service. She'd been staying in a downtown hotel, reportedly placed there by social workers before her disappearance. Days later, her body was pulled from the Red River in August of 2014. Fontaine's death renewed calls to undertake an independent national inquiry into missing and murdered aboriginal women. "The haunting song "Stolen" at end of the video is performed by young Canadian electro-pop artist Johnny Saga and his band "Wolf Saga" from London, Ontario.

The Impact of Colonialism in Canada 2016 CC 20 min LeMay Media

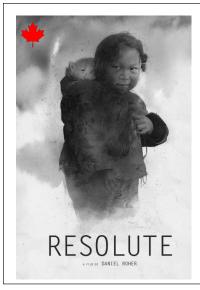

Prior to the arrival of Europeans, First Nations people were a richly diversified, self-sufficient culture living in various areas of Canada. Much of that changed with the arrival of the first Europeans. When European explorers and settlers arrived here, their success and survival rested on the guidance and assistance of the First Nations who at the time vastly outnumbered the visitors.

In 1763, King George III recognized Aboriginal rights and title to land through the Royal Proclamation. However, the new settlers also were given permission to colonize and purchase First Nations land. The resulting impact was residential schools, reserves, forbidden ceremonies, and disease all leading to a culture that lost its identity. Colonization is the disconnection of indigenous people from the land, their history, their identity and their rights so that others benefit. It is a basic form of injustice, and has been condemned as a practice by the United nations.

In this program from award-winning Métis filmmaker Matt LeMay, we explore the history and consequences of the Canadian Government's attempts to assimilate Canada's Indigenous population. We explore the Indian Act, the establishment of the Canadian Residential School system, broken treaty promises, and the 60's scoop. This video will educate the viewer as to why so many of Canada's First Nation communities face serious sociological and economic challenges.

It was a forced relocation to assert sovereignty that led the Canadian government to commit one of the most grievous human rights violations in Canadian history. Zipporah was a girl when her family was among the eighty Inuit to be sent to the high arctic, but she remembers vividly the anger when her father realized he had been duped. An epidemic of alcoholism swept through the town as the men and women drowned their shame at the military's tavern. This family drama documents the story of Zipporah and her two daughters, Doreen and Celina who grew up in a community of darkness. Through a harmonization of haunting interviews, archival footage and experimental animation, Resolute tells a story familiar to thousands of indigenous families in Canada and beyond. #LRP001 $159: DVD

Survivors Rowe

For almost twenty years Ralph Rowe held a unique esteem in the isolated First Nation Reserves of Northern Ontario. As an Anglican minister and a Boy Scout leader, Rowe was revered and trusted by community elders and cultivated adoration from all the children he worked with. He had the perfect cover for a pedophile. Rowe abused an estimated 500 native boys throughout the 1970s and 80s.

"Survivors Rowe" documents the harrowing and tragic stories of three men who as boys were victims of Rowe. Joshua Frog, John Fox and Ralph Winter open their hearts to recount the abuse they experienced as children, and how their lives disintegrated because of it. A melody of pain, anguish, forgiveness and love, these three brave men embody the sacred truth that it's only when one confronts their past, that they are able to face their future. This film continues to play a role in the healing process of First Nations sex abuse survivors. #LRP003 $159: DVD

Missing and Murdered Aboriginal Women in Canada

"The video's topic makes it more than worthwhile. A crucial cause that needs to be taught and shared, and that cannot be ignored." - Resource Links 2017

Violence against women is a significant issue in society. According to the World Health Organization, it affects one third of women around the world. Violence against women is also a serious issue in Canada, unfortunately.

One particular group of Canadian women merit special attention: Indigenous women and girls in Canada experience a scale and severity of violence that constitutes a national human rights crisis.

The issue of violence against aboriginal women and girls is a systemic one with deep roots in sexism, poverty and racism. To properly address the situation, one must understand the history and impact of colonization on Aboriginal peoples in Canada. There has been a cycle of trauma and abuse brought on by residential schools, and by the 60s Scoop – where large numbers of aboriginal children were forcibly taken into the child welfare system.

This informative video gives an overview of the history of trauma and abuse experienced by Aboriginal women in Canada. We trace its roots from early colonialism in Canada to recent actions by the Canadian government, the Truth and Reconciliation Commission, and the release of the RCMP Report on Missing and Murdered Aboriginal Women in Canada. #MCI090 $119: DVD Please call for streaming price. Music has been an integral part of Indigenous cultures since time immemorial. Although there is great diversity among Indigenous groups, music acts of a unifying force. Music represents an important artistic, spiritual and cultural component in their lives. Elders use song and music as a way to tell a story to teach. Song is the language of the soul. In music, there is a recognition of voice and culture. Music is seen as healing. These two videos demonstrate the spiritual nature of music to Indigenous people and the importance of music in a time of reconciliation and healing.

The Grandfather Drum

2016 13 min Thunderstone Pictures

Official Selection – 2016 Sundance Film Festival 2016 Hot Docs Film Festival, Toronto 2016 ImagineNATIVE Film & Media Arts Festival

"Insightful and level-headed tale of an indigenous Canadian tribe and a ritual drum that passes down through generations before being taken by settlers and put in a museum... it's calm but purposeful, pointed but tranquil; it has the ability to see past transient contemporary concerns through to a kind of ageless wisdom. The animation is also really creative. Everything looks like paper cut-outs that fold in and out as the story progresses, as if the movie is a kind of animated pop-up book. Maybe the prettiest of the shorts." – ScreeningNotes, Sundance Film Festival

The drum is very much a part of the social and spiritual fabric of life in the First Nation, Métis and Inuit culture. The drum healed people for many years until Christianity was introduced to the community and colonialism became the new reality. The drum represents the heartbeat of the community.

Beautifully crafted animation combines with masterful storytelling in Anishinaabe filmmaker Michelle Derosier's film about a magic drum. For the Anishinabek, the drum is a revered object that brings healing. With this particular drum, now part of a museum collection, The Grandfather Drum is a timely film about the dispossession of Indigenous ceremonial artifacts. The film tells the true story of a First Nations elder. After his grandson dies, Naamowin builds a healing drum to restore balance and connection to his community. The program explores the heritage of colonialism and the subsequent trauma still deeply affecting First Nations communities. #TP0000 $159: DVD

If you're an indigenous person living in a country that was forcefully colonized, it's all too common to find yourself underrepresented and misrepresented if not blatantly and systematically devalued and attacked. Positive role models and a positive self-identity are hard to come by, yet the Canadian DJ collective A Tribe Called Red is a modern gateway into urban and contemporary indigenous culture and experience, celebrating all its layers and complexity.

With multiple nominations for Juno Awards, the group's music, which blends traditional Latin and hip hop rhythms, heavy base-driven beats of dubstep, and the powerful and ancient music and culture of Canada's First Nations, has attracted a growing fan base in Canada and across the world. Group members Ian Campeau, Tim Hill, and Ehren Thomas, discuss their lives, early musical influences, and their role in building bridges between cultures by broadening cultural awareness and understanding of aboriginal issues from oil and gas pipelines, to reconciling the dark past of Canada's residential schools.

"Trees are the very foundation of the web of life of which we are a part. In this lovely film, we are shown that we need trees for our physical, social and spiritual well-being." - David Suzuki

We cut down billions of trees every year – today only five percent of the worlds old growth forests remain intact. Yet trees are one of this planets most significant creators of food, new medicines, and oxygen. Forests hold the answer to many of the worlds problems; from climate change to human health and well-being. Visionary scientist and acclaimed author Diana Beresford-Kroeger explores the science, folklore, and history of this essential ecosystem reminding us that when we improve our profound human connection to woodlands we can, not only, restore our health - we can restore our planet.

From the sacred sugi and cedar forests of Japan, the ancient Raheen Wood of Ireland, and the walnut and redwood trees of America, to the great boreal forest of Canada, Call of the Forest tells the amazing stories behind the history and legacy of these ancient forests while also explaining the science of trees and the irreplaceable roles they play in protecting and feeding the planet.

In the shadow of a De Beers mine, the remote community of Attawapiskat lurches from crisis to crisis, while facing mounting environmental issues and an inability to directly benefit from resource revenues. Filmed over five years, After the Last River is a point of view documentary that follows Attawapiskat's journey from obscurity and into the international spotlight during the protests of Idle No More.

After the Last River is a complex examination of a community under pressure. Poverty, neglect, and isolation combine to force the remote reserve of Attawapiskat into accepting a De Beers diamond mine on it's traditional territory. As the mine removes billions of dollars worth of diamonds, the promised jobs barely materialize and the community is threatened by potentially devastating contamination.

Filmmaker, Vicki Lean, follows the remote reserve's five-year journey into the international spotlight. Through interviews with executives and government, and day-in-the-life footage of the community, Lean weaves a tapestry of the issues effecting indigenous rights today.

After the Last River connects personal stories from the First Nation to industry agendas and government policies, painting a complex portrait of a territory that is an imperilled homeland to some and a profitable new frontier for others. #ICE013 $295: DVD

Melting Lands: A Cultural Climate Change 2010 52 mins Hemmings House BEST DOCUMENTARY - Silver Wave Film Festival

"MELTING LANDS" is a documentary that explores the effects of global warming in a small community in the Canadian North. The ice is melting faster every year. "Melting Lands" documents how this affects the Inuit peoples of the Nunavik community named Kangiqsujuaq (how they live, how they eat, how they survive), animal life (how the melting ice has affected caribou, polar bears, seals, fish, birds etc), nature (how the warming temperatures have introduced new species of plants, insects etc), and the economy (how the warming temperatures affect the cost of imported food, transport etc.).

Artfully shot, this documentary revolves around the stories of a group of Inuit villagers: hunters, elders, fishermen and other residents. The viewer will be able to have an insider's look at the every day lives of these people in a way that would not be possible otherwise.

Through the experience of following these characters, the viewer can have a good understanding about how this community of people are living today and how, through their perspective and experience, climate change is forcing them to adapt to new ways of living. #HHP000 $200: DVD Please call for streaming price.

Exploring how wilderness space shapes Canada's identity, its culture and imagination, The Peel Project follows six artists as they paddle into the Arctic Circle through the Yukon and Northwest Territories in The Peel River Watershed. The Peel is last intact watershed left in North America, and an ongoing legal battle has been fighting to keep the region protected despite mounting pressure to open it to mining claims.

Through the lens of these six artists: a Métis writer, a photographer, a visual artist, a painter, a glass artist/sculptor, and a composer/sound artist -- The Peel Project follows their attempts to create artwork in the true wilderness of Canada's high north.

Battling the elements and the frustration of creating in such conditions, we see the beauty of place and people through the eyes of theses six southerners. The artist's journey opens discussions on nationality, resource extraction and respect for the traditional territory of the First Nations. Set in an awe-inspiring landscape the world is in peril of losing, The Peel Project is a story of art, adventure and Canadian identity. Not only does the film, and the art inspired by the journey, capture the beauty of the landscape, wildlife and culture of one of Canada's last intact watersheds, it serves as a canvas to understand a larger struggle. This watershed is one of the last undeveloped watersheds left in Canada. As of 2014, 71% was opened for economic development related to mining and oil exploration. A war is being waged between those who want to develop this immense water system and those who want to protect its delicate ecological balance – especially the First Nations who view it as their land's lifeblood and a support for its teeming wildlife.

Biosphere reserves are regions of global ecological significance that make an ongoing commitment to the United Nations to strive for sustainability. They are places where people are inspired to find ways to live and work in harmony with nature. This series explains what is happening in Canada's biosphere reserves – the successes and the challenges of people determined to create a sustainable future for their communities. Come with us on a coast to coast journey spanning thousands of years to find out what makes them special, from geological, ecological, historical and cultural perspectives. We'll also investigate the reserves as living laboratories by joining academics, citizen scientists and indigenous knowledge-keepers in their research to create a more sustainable future for both Canadians and the environments in which we live.

Bras d'Or Biosphere Reserve, Nova Scotia

Bras d'Or Lake is located in Nova Scotia and consists of a saltwater estuary watershed 'inland sea'. The terrestrial, marine and coastal habitats provide a home for human populations, as well as other organisms. The original settlers colonized the region following the retreat of glaciers, and today their descendants make up the Mi'kmag populations. The area sustained the Mi'kmaq people for millennia. With European settlement, the region's economy shifted to an industrial model that ultimately proved to be unsustainable. There has been a long struggle here to find sustainable industry with the oyster. For over 40 years, aquaculture has played a key role in the area's economy. However, in 2002, the parasite M.S.X. killed over 90% of the oysters in Cape Breton's Bras d'Or Lake. Using science and traditional Mi'kmaq knowledge, people are finding innovative ways to recover this most sustainable local industry. #LIV018 $159: DVD Please call for streaming price.

Waterton Biosphere Reserve, Alberta

The story of how the Waterton Biosphere Reserve has remained largely ecologically intact is a remarkable tale beginning with the region's Indigenous people, the Kootenay and Blackfoot. It is an area these people went for ceremonial purposes and to hunt the herds of bison that were an important part of the prairie's ecosystem. Things changed quickly in the 1800s when ranchers moved in, disease spread, treaties were signed and bison numbers decreased dramatically due to European hunters. Agriculture and ranchers took over. As time has progressed, the ranchers have been challenged to find ways to coexist with the powerful grizzly bear. The protected mountains of the Waterton Lakes National Park create the perfect habitat for grizzlies. The richness of this land is the result of centuries of care and management. Fundy Biosphere Reserve, New Brunswick Critically endangered salmon aren't the only challenge facing the people of New Brunswick's Fundy Biosphere Reserve – home of the world's highest tides and iconic mud flats: climate change is altering its forests; the bats that overwinter here have died of white nose syndrome; and its iconic shorebirds may be less abundant than once thought. Most of these problems are not unique to the Fundy Biosphere Reserve, but people here are leading the way in how to deal with them.

Long Point Biosphere Reserve, Ontario

Reaching forty kilometres into Lake Erie, Long Point in Ontario, is the world's longest freshwater sand spit. How the Point's endless beaches endure as a natural oasis, here in Canada's most densely populated region, is a feat that involves more than just your typical environmentalists. This is a story of hunters, farmers, foresters, birders, biologists, and just about everyone else in the Long Point Biosphere Reserve – who have learnt from conservation pioneers how to cultivate biodiversity, culture, and an economy, on a foundation of sand. Now, at almost 30% natural cover, it's hard to believe that at one time, thousands of acres here were devoid of vegetation – a desert in the lush Canadian south. #LIV025 $159: DVD Please call for streaming price.

W5's Lloyd Robertson heads to Kincardine, Ont., along the banks of picturesque Lake Huron. Home to nearly 12,000 residents, Kincardine is also the home of Bruce Power, the world's largest nuclear power station – a private facility under lease from Ontario Power Generation (OPG). While nuclear power may be praised for being clean and cheap, it creates an unwelcome dilemma: nuclear waste, and what to do with it. W5 spotlights OPG's waste management system and its plans to build an underground bunker known as a Deep Geologic Repository (DGR) to contain some of Ontario's nuclear waste. Robertson interviews residents, activist groups, and politicians on both sides of the border to spotlight how the DGR project - with a proposed site only 1.2 kilometres from Lake Huron, part of the Great Lakes system and a source of drinking water for more than 40 million people – is dividing communities concerned with the safe and secure storage of nuclear waste. #CTV711 $129.95: DVD Please call for streaming price.

Canada's Natural Resources Series: Creating a Sustainable Environment Series

2017 CC 20 min ea LeMay Media

SPECIAL SERIES PRICE – ONLY $417 – a savings of $60 -Series Product #LM0012 Individual titles: $159 each

In this new series from award-winning Métis filmmaker Matt LeMay, we explore three of Canada's natural resources - forests, water and wildlife – all a vital part of the earth's incredibly balanced and interconnected ecosystem that miraculously repairs and maintains itself. Each program explores the nature of the environmental, cultural and social issues that need to be addressed and overcome in order to create a world that is able to sustain life, support progress, and plans for renewal. Our economic activities must not deplete the Earth's resources and they must respect the Aboriginal communities and cultures that have inhabited this country for thousands of years. Each program gives several examples from Aboriginal communities across Canada.

Forests

In this program, we explore the concept of sustainability in regards to Canada's forests which cover over half of our landmass. We begin with a look at the history of deforestation practices and the impact this has had on biodiversity and habitats. Traditional industrial forest practices have also had a detrimental impact on local and aboriginal communities. Various examples are provided from First Nation communities across the country. The program also highlights the newer approaches to forest management in Canada. Initiatives by government organizations, the Aboriginal Forestry Initiative, and various local groups now work at saving and sustainably managing our forests.

This program provides an excellent introduction to the topics of sustainability, the critical role forests play in the carbon cycle and climate change, and the importance of forests in our cultural, spiritual and physical health. #LM0013 $159: DVD Please call for streaming price.

Water

This program looks at the state of water in Canada, a natural resource that is often taken for granted. Our waterways are unique, complex and interconnected systems that sustain life, yet are continually mistreated. Pollution, hydraulic fracking, the bottled water industry urban development, agricultural practices, the use of microplastics and invasive species all have taken their toll on the watershed.

Access to sufficient, affordable, and safe drinking water is easy for most Canadians, but this is not true for many First Nations indigenous persons. In stark contrast, the water supplied to many First Nations communities is contaminated, hard to access, or at risk due to faulty treatment systems. Many First Nations communities in Canada have boil-water advisories. To build resilient environments, healthy communities and economies for the future, we need to ensure there is enough healthy water flowing in our lakes and rivers for nature's needs. #LM0014 $159: DVD Please call for streaming price.

Wildlife

Non-human life on our planet is in a more perilous state that ever before. Experts believe the world is in the midst of a biodiversity crisis on par with earlier mass extinction events. Global biodiversity is declining at an alarming rate, putting the survival of other species and our own future at risk. Large hydroelectric projects, logging, mining, road building, and climate change impacts migratory patterns, food sources and natural habitats. Wildlife health is extrinsically linked to the health of the environment which in turn impacts human health. Many First Nation communities relied and still rely on a healthy and plentiful wildlife population for survival. Their subsistent-based way of life has been made extremely vulnerable. Many land and animal species they have traditionally relied on for survival are now considered at-risk species.

Yukon Wild

This episode visits the Yukon in the fall, just before winter is closing in and all wildlife must get ready for the harsh and forbidding cold ahead. From the highest peaks of some of the most majestic mountain ranges on earth, to vast glaciers and seemingly endless plateaus, the Yukon awes and inspires. It's a land shaped by the last ice age, when glaciers scoured the Yukon's mountains and valleys. It's land of extremes. Plant and animal diversity is low. Few species can survive the extremes of blistering summer heat and winter's icy blast. Climate change is having an unprecedented impact on the land and wildlife. Caribou, dall sheep, marmots and pikas all struggle with the rising temperatures and unusual weather patterns. The Yukon's ancient rhythms are threatened.

Waiting for Winter

Cape Tatnam on the western shore of Hudson Bay is the home of the world's most southerly polar bear population. Hudson Bay is frozen for half of each year, and the bears live out on the ice, hunting seal, their favorite food. In the summer, polar bears are stranded on the coast cut off from their main food source. With a longer ice-free period, the sight of one of the world's fiercest predators grazing on seaweed is becoming more common on the Western shores of Hudson Bay. The long summer and fall has been an especially tough time for young polar bears and mothers with cubs. Polar bears in this region have adapted to eating nothing, or snacking on less nutritious food, like grass, seaweed or bird eggs during the summer months. #BAM475 $119: DVD

Big Pacific 2017 CC

FILMS

265 min/ 2 discs PBS

The Pacific Ocean covers one third of the Earth's surface. It is larger than all Earth's land combined, holds half of our world's water, and hides the deepest place on our planet. It is a place where huge and iconic, rare and dazzling creatures live - and where creatures yet to be discovered lurk. The Pacific sees the most violent storms, creates the most powerful waves, and is powered by the strongest currents. It boasts the largest coral reefs and the richest kelp forests. Its submarine landscape plummets from sea grass prairies to the ultimate abyss, and its tropical seamounts starkly contrast with its massive ice floes.

Over five cinematic episodes, "Big Pacific" breaks the boundaries between land and sea, moving throughout the Pacific Ocean to present a broad range of locations, species, natural phenomena and behaviors. Four of the episodes focus on an iconic characteristic of the Pacific: Passionate, Voracious, Violent, and Mysterious, to weave stories from across the Pacific that illustrate the multi-faceted character of this ocean. #041875 $87.99 Please call for streaming price.

odds competing in one of the world's most dangerous sports, dares to reach for an almost impossible dream, and in doing so helps pave the way for women in sport.

It is a story about a woman who maintained a loyalty to her younger self, by conquering the ambitious goals she set, with a fire she never let die down. The film is a historic portrayal about the life and tumultuous sport career of Lydia Lassila through the times of world dominance by the Australian aerial ski team.

As a curriculum resource, the film expands and enriches student's understanding of human experiences. Students can discuss how individuals with commitment and vision such as Lydia can make a difference in their life, in their chosen field and in the lives of others. The Will to Fly also offers students the opportunity to develop a knowledge and understanding of the physical, mental, social and emotional health benefits of embracing sport as a participant and/or a spectator. In particular, the film endorses gender equality and the need for level playing fields, and encourages conversations about empowerment.

A Nation Soars: Commemorating Canada's Great War Flyers

2017 48 min each x 3 programs CC Sound Venture

A Nation Soars is a trilogy of documentaries narrated by Dan Aykroyd that explore how aviation changed the course of the First World War, such as its vital part in Canada's nation-defining victory at Vimy Ridge. From the early days of flight in 1914 to the aerial photography that produced the battle-winning maps of Vimy Ridge, A Nation Soars offers a fascinating and refreshing look at Canada's part in the Great War.

Drawn to Victory

Tells the story of how aerial photography (with some clever Canadian innovations) led to the development of the greatest tactical weapon of the First World War — accurate battlefield maps. It also shows how in the post-war years, the new technology was applied to Canada's vast swaths of unmapped land, and the first detailed maps of the country's interior were created. #SVP029 $159: DVD Please call for streaming price.

Asian Immigration Experiences

This program examines the experiences of Chinese, Japanese and South Asian immigrants in Canada. These people ventured to Canada for various reasons including work, escaping war and poverty in their homeland and the lure of a young growing nation. Canada held hope with work on the railway, a gold rush and free land. This program investigates the "push" and "pull" factors that influenced their arrival here and the problems, including racism, they encountered.

Eastern European Immigration Experiences

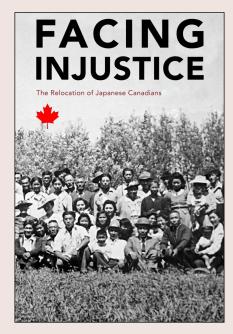

Immigration between 1867 and 1914 resulted in an important period of population growth in Canada. Significant changes that occurred after Confederation made an immigration boom possible in the Prairies. Canada's new transcontinental railway made travel across the country easier. The Dominion Lands Act of 1872 made free and fertile homesteads available for settlers. The Department of the Interior began working to attract hardworking immigrants to the Canadian prairies offering free land. Europeans, including Romanians, Hungarians, Ukrainians, Jews, Doukhobors and Mennonites were motivated to come to settle in the west, and begin farming. All was not easy! #PPP004 $159: DVD

Facing Injustice:

The Relocation of Japanese Canadians 2016 CC 51 mins Past Perfect Productions During the Second World War, Canada declared war with Japan on December 8, 1941, after the Japanese attacked Pearl Harbor, Hawaii. There were many Japanese-Canadians living on the British Columbia coast, most of whom were fishers and many of whom were secondgeneration Canadians. Many British Columbia residents were afraid that the Japanese-Canadians were spies, and coupled with long-time racism and resentment, they lobbied the federal government to deport or intern Japanese-Canadians for the duration of the war. Prime Minister Mackenzie King issued the order, and Japanese-Canadians had their assets and properties seized and auctioned to pay for the internment. Families were often separated and they were sent to camps in the BC interior. At the end of the war, internees were given the choice of moving east to Ontario or Manitoba, or deportation to Japan. This documentary tells why Japanese Canadians were forcibly removed from the West Coast in 1942 and placed on sugar beet farms as labourers in Manitoba and finally settling in Winnipeg. #PPP000 $250: DVD Please call for streaming price.

Africa's Great Civilizations

2017 CC 360 min/2 discs PBS

In his six-hour series, Africa's Great Civilizations, Henry Louis Gates, Jr. takes a new look at the history of Africa, from the birth of humankind to the dawn of the 20th century. This is a breathtaking and personal journey through two hundred thousand years of history, from the origins, on the African continent, of art, writing, and civilization itself, through the millennia in which Africa and Africans shaped not only their own rich civilizations, but also the wider world.

Professor Gates travels the length and breadth of Africa to chronicle the continent's history from a firmly African perspective. His journey takes him from the city of Great Zimbabwe, to the pyramids of Meroe, and the spectacular rock-hewn churches of Lalibela in Ethiopia.

The epic story that he tells is full of surprises and unexpected connections, helping us to appreciate the collective and individual genius of Africans who, across thousands of years, built civilizations and empires, fought wars, established great cities, furthered and spread learning, and created some of the most sublime art and architecture in human history. #041879 $99.95: DVD

Beyond the Spectrum

2017 CC 60 min/90 min Merit Entertainment Inc. Offers a different perspective of children with ASDD as it examines early intervention and insight into an entire family struggling and coping with autism. A parents' quest to 'recover' their two-year-old son from Autism Spectrum Disorder (ASD) takes them on a bittersweet journey, testing them in ways they never expected.

With the arrival of twins Oskar and Izzy, this family of seven had their hands full. But parents Carly and Stef were about to notice things with Oskar that seemed all too familiar. Nine years earlier, Carly's oldest son was diagnosed with autism. His speech was delayed, he engaged in repetitive behaviours (stims), and he seemed to be in a constant state of anxiety. When they started to see similar red flags in Oskar, they did their best write it off: "He's a boy;" "He's sad;" "He's distracted." But videotaping and analyzing Oskar along side his twin sister, it soon became impossible to ignore: Oskar wasn't typical.

At two years old, Oskar is diagnosed with severe autism. Carly and Stef make a profound commitment to quit work and spend a year helping Oskar achieve his developmental milestones. They are inspired by the success they had with Carly's older autistic son, who has not only overcome many of his early challenges but is now ahead of his peers in many ways. Carly and Stef credit drastic diet changes and other therapies for this transformation. And they start down a similar path with Oskar.

But Oskar proves to be very different from his older brother, and progress seems fleeting to non-existent. With every setback, the film delves deeper into the mystery that is Oskar. Several adults with autism, including Temple Grandin, share their personal experiences and help us gain insight into Oskar's world.

Life with an autistic child involves a lot of small (and not so small) daily challenges that impact the whole family. This honest yet hopeful portrait follows Carly and her family to the breaking point, where they must rethink everything. As they strive to connect with Oskar, they must confront an impossible question: should they try to change Oskar, or accept him just the way he is? 60 min version: #MEI003 $250: DVD only

It used to be just for kids, but not anymore. ADHD: Not Just For Kids aims to dispel the myths and stigmas about Attention Deficit Hyperactivity Disorder, a condition that many people, kids and adults alike, often live with for years, unrecognized or misdiagnosed.

ADHD is a neurobiological disorder that leads to inattention, hyperactivity, and impulsivity. People with ADHD are often the adventurers, the ones willing to take risks, and thus are an important part of our social fabric. ADHD: Not Just For Kids tries to show that children and adults alike can transform their ADHD from a functional shortfall into a strength. It just needs to be recognized in the first place.

ADHD: Not Just For Kids introduces the viewer to specialists and researchers who provide insight on current science and treatment. As well, successful adults share stories of attempting to cope for years with a condition they never knew they had, instead blaming underperformance and struggles with day-to-day functions, frustrated career ambitions, and problems with relationships, on laziness, lack of discipline or even lack of ability. #MSF000 $250: DVD Please call for streaming price.

Health and Medicine

The Curious Case of Vitamins and Me 2015 CC 60 min Merit Entertainment Inc. "Everybody should watch this film, especially the young. Eat a varied and healthy diet and you get your needed vitamins. But what is a healthy diet? Watch this fabulous documentary and pass the word!" - Dr. Laura Nader, UC Berkley

The Curious Case of Vitamins and Me consults with leading health and nutrition experts in an attempt to debunk myths and misconceptions around vitamins and supplements, and determine the best course of action for optimal nutritional health. Using a fast paced, fun and energetic style The Curious Case of Vitamins and Me, directed and written by Bryce Sage, examines the role geography and skin color play in our need for Vitamin D and includes an insightful visit to a supplement factory in order to understand where they originate. On his quest to further understand the world of vitamins, Bryce also learns that over-supplementing with certain vitamins can have lethal consequences.

Toxic Chemicals: Children in Danger 2016 CC 56 min Films Media Group

Is our dependence on pesticides harming the health of our children? Every day, children are exposed to up to 130 chemical pollutants from pesticides. All around the world, scientists and doctors are raising the alarm, linking increase of child cancers, birth defects and even the explosion of autism with exposure to chemicals in pesticides. Six corporations control the pesticide market: Syngenta, Bayer, Monsanto, Dow, Basf and Dupont. They rule over a market of 50 billion dollars. For a year, director Martin Boudot followed the tracks of their molecules to show how some of the most dangerous ones get into our everyday life. This documentary reveals how some chemical corporations endanger the health of our children. #394957 $237.95: DVD

The Fish on My Plate

2017 CC 60 min PBS

"What fish should I eat that's good for me and good for the planet?" That's the question bestselling author and lifelong fisherman Paul Greenberg (Four Fish; American Catch) sets out to answer in The Fish on My Plate.

ON DEMAND

As part of his quest to investigate the health of the ocean - and his own, Greenberg spends a year eating seafood at breakfast, lunch and dinner, eating over 700 fish meals in hopes of improving his health through a dramatic increase in his Omega-3 levels.

With people worldwide consuming more seafood than ever, Greenberg also explores questions of sustainability and overfishing, traveling to Norway, where modern fish farming was invented; Peru to witness the world's largest wild fishery; Alaska, where 200 million salmon can be caught each year; and Connecticut to visit a sustainable ocean farming pioneer who is trying to transform the fishing industry.

The Fish on My Plate isn't just the story of one man's journey. It's a must-watch documentary for any consumer who cares about both his or her own health, and the health of the planet.

Vixens & Virgins...And Other Mythological Creatures

2012 CC 60 min Merit Entertainment Inc.

Vixens & Virgins follows one mother's fascinating investigation into the lives of teenage girls and whether there is truth behind all the media reports. Three teenage girls share the intimate details of their personal lives, giving us an honest glimpse into what has been described as the most self-destructive generation of girls in modern history. Using candid interviews, intimate video diaries, and an experimental interactive project called The Honesty Box, which received over 1000 responses, we journey through the highs and lows of the modern teenager.

Headlines would have us all believe that teenage girls have gone wild. But is that really true? The answers are surprising and often contrary to popular belief. Through conversations about drug abuse and sexual relationships, anorexia and "mean girl" cliques, cutting and the pressure to be popular, the girls and specialists invite us into the real-life stories behind all those headlines—some of which prove to be true and others surprisingly not.

Emotions in Action

2016 CC 11 min TDunn & Associates

Well-being is a balance of the mental, physical, spiritual and emotional. This balance is enriched when individuals have purpose, hope for their future, a sense of belonging and meaning, and an understanding of how their lives are an integral part of their family and community.

In Emotions in Action: Hear What They Have to Say, viewers are taken on short visual voyage into the emotional space of a small family dealing with alcoholism. The program is a conversational catalyst which helps viewers notice behavioural patterns and their associated outcomes. It serves to promote a culture of well-being in individuals, families and communities.

Co-produced by the authors of the Emotional Awareness Training program and inspired by real-life events, coproducers Theresa Dunn, Psychologist and Mediator, and MC Lessard, Certified Executive Coach and Emotional Intelligence Practitioner, have created a short film that can be used as a discussion starter to build a conversation that highlights the fact that positive emotions are levers of desirable behaviour and can lead to favourable outcomes.
