Sunny’s Quest is a series of 20 short videos (7 minutes) that feature first-person stories told by Black children from across the country. Each episode showcases a different child and their unique perspective on their day-to-day hobbies, their talents, and heritage. Each episode features short inspirational videos by some of the kids’ Black role models. These surprise guests will answer the child’s questions and inspire them to continue on a path to excellence.

Most importantly, we see that even though the lives of Afro-Canadian children are like other Canadian children, there are enriched by their cultural heritage, traditions and knowledge.

This season’s adventures include: a 10-year-old Canadian Haitian gymnast and future Olympic hopeful; an 11-year-old half Jamaican and part-Indigenous boy who found his true passion for dance at a young age and dreams of being a professional hip hop dancer; a 9-year-old boy of African Nova Scotian/ Guyanese and European Descent who comes from a long line of advocates for racial equality and is following in his family’s footsteps; and many more!

Series Consultant: Afua Cooper is is a celebrated poet, spoken word icon, author, scholar, and historian.

Canfield Roots Series

Grades 6-12 2021 Windecker Road Films

Lying nearly forgotten in a grove of trees at the back of a farmer’s field is an old cemetery, long abandoned and poorly maintained. The cemetery should hold a special importance to the people of Canfield, a small village in southern Ontario, as the last physical evidence of a significant community of freedom seekers who arrived there on the Underground Railroad in the mid-1800s. Canfield Roots portrays the front-line efforts to preserve history before it’s lost and the emotional, human connections over the generations from our ancestors to the present day. The series shares some of the stories of the Black families who made Canfield their home.

Finding Peter Bryce
Grades 7-12 2018 22 min Peter Campbell
Finding Peter Bryce reveals that not all settler peoples were blind to the injustice inherent in Canada's residential school system and the effects of those shortcomings. If citizens were blind to the issues, it was a willful blindness. Dr. Bryce's perspective was in sharp contrast to that of civil servant Duncan Campbell Scott, whose tragic role as deputy superintendent of the Department of Indian Affairs is outlined in the film. But First Nations' children's advocate, Cindy Blackstock points out that many of us today find ourselves making similar decisions when there is pressure to conform. Each of us must choose how we respond to the challenge of reconciliation.

Broken Justice: From Amplify Series
Grades 9-12 2020 22:24 min Animiki See Distribution
Anishinaabe songwriter Leonard Sumner reflects on the unjust verdicts in the Colton Boushie and Tina Fontaine cases. His storytelling flows directly from the shores of Little Saskatchewan First Nation, in the heart of the Interlake of Manitoba. Leonard sets out to write a song that reflects on the unjust verdicts in the Colton Boushie and Tina Fontaine cases. Joined by Poet Tasha Spillet, and Attorney Amanda Sansregret, Leonard digs into the systemic racism in the 'justice' system in Canada. The episode asks us to reframe our understanding of justice. The meaning of the word justice in Ojibwe, Leonard explains, "Doesn't mean one side is punished and one side isn't punished. It means that we acknowledge that something has been done that is wrong and we need to make it right. That's what the justice system should be about."

The Métis Hunt for Justice: The Powley Story
2023 62:49 min LeMay Media
On September 19, 2003, the Supreme Court of Canada handed down its unanimous judgment in R. v. Powley. It recognized the Sault Ste. Marie Métis community located in the Upper Great Lakes region of north central Ontario and affirmed that this Métis community holds Métis rights protected by section 35 of the Constitution Act, 1982.

The Powley case was—and remains—the only high court decision that has confirmed the existence of a rights-bearing Métis community in Canada. This defining moment in Métis history established an important legal precedent in modern Indigenous law.

Métis Hunt for Justice: the Powley Story is a powerful documentary recounting the profound struggle of Ontario Métis against marginalization and the denial of their very existence, as well as the immense impact of the Powley case over the last 20 years.

Featuring archival footage and interviews with Métis citizens from Sault Ste. Marie, plus new research and commentary by trial judges, current leaders, and others involved in the case - this is the definitive account of the Powley case and what it has meant for Métis in Canada.

Returning Home
Grades 9-12 2021 71:50 min Canadian Geographic Enterprise
Directed by Secwépemc filmmaker Sean Stiller, ‘Returning Home’ follows Orange Shirt Day founder Phyllis Jack-Webstad on a cathartic cross-Canada educational tour as her own family struggles to heal from multigenerational trauma. Amid a global pandemic and the lowest salmon run in Canadian history, ‘Returning Home’ explores how a multi-year federal fishing moratorium is tearing at the very fabric of Secwépemc communities and traditions.

Throughout the 19th and 20th centuries Secwépemc communities were dispossessed of their land and their children were consumed by the residential school system. By observing the trauma experienced by Phyllis and her family, ‘Returning Home’ holds a mirror to the trauma experienced by the natural world, too, as the salmon are also facing dispossession through gradual destruction of their waterways. For the Secwépemc, healing humans and protecting the natural world are interwoven.

The Five World Religions - An Overview
Grades 7-12 2019 16:36 min Kunsapsmedia Group
Through examples from the world’s five major religions - Christianity, Islam, Hinduism, Buddhism and Judaism - we learn what religion is, why people turn to religion, and how it gives meaning to people of different faiths. Why do we have religions? Religions enrich the cultures of which they are a part. They meet psychological, emotional and social needs; they provide a variety of answers to universal questions. The video looks at belief systems, rituals, rites of passage, ceremonies, religious festivals, holy places, symbols, prayer, monotheism, and polytheism. Religion has also led to disagreements and conflicts between people of different faiths and differing philosophies of life.

Religion: What It Is And What It Does

Grades 10-12 2019 5:21 Shortcutstv Ltd

Ask a hundred people what they think religion is and you'll probably get a hundred different answers. However, to study religion we have bring together more general ideas about what religion is and what it does. This film, with Professor Eileen Barker of the London School of Economics, explains and illustrates the two dominant sociological approaches to religion: substantive, with a focus on the salient features of religion and functional, where the focus is on what religion does for the individual and society.

Understanding Poverty: From 12 Neighbors Series
Grades 10-12 2018 15:58 min Hemmings House Pictures
Meet the amazing cast of characters from 12 Neighbors, a wonderful series which explores the question: “What does it really mean to love your neighbor? We begin by exploring the dimensions of poverty, its feelings and causes, and start to ask, “who is my neighbor”? The episode introduces Fr. Gregory Boyle. He points out that one of the main factors of poverty is “sheer dumb luck”. He says, “...some people win the zip code lottery, some people win the parent lottery, or the education lottery, and some don't win any lottery at all. And it has nothing to do with moral character, smarts, or the ability to work hard. Not all choices are created equal” He also discusses the principal suffering of the poor throughout history is shame and disgrace.
